CAPTAIN CUTTLE

Captain Cuttle and The Quest for Virtual Safety!

Hiya! I'm Captain Cuttle. Come along with me on an adventure into brave new realities!

On this adventure into Virtual Worlds together we will go on a Quest for Safety for all explorers. Together we will make sure everyone, even your friends and family, read the Explorer Notes so we can all play safe.

I'm a cuttlefish, and that means I'm the best in the business of changing how I look, which can come in handy when I need to hide from predators. Now that I have you on this adventure, we will do more than just cool camouflage tricks to make sure we succeed on our Quest for Safety!

Let's work together! As we go on this journey, we'll make sure to follow these rules of virtual reality (VR) exploration, and tell our parents and friends about them, too! This way, we have a much better chance of succeeding... The best part is, together we will have a lot of fun along the way!

Before we step into VR, let's set some ground rules to make this a SAFE ADVENTURE

- ##### 1 Frequently take breaks

It can be really tempting to stay in the virtual worlds for a long time. They're exciting and can be totally different from the real world on land (or my home in the sea). If you start getting a headache, your eyes get tired, or your body starts feeling dizzy, take a break. Frequent breaks every 15-20 minutes will help us stay strong, and we can always come back to our adventure another time! Even I have to rest my legs sometimes, and I have 8 of them!
- ##### 2 Clear your surroundings

I always make sure my Captain's Quarters are totally clean and the play area clear of any obstacles before I dive into a virtual world. We don't want to bump into things or get hurt when we're searching for treasure! Trust me, I've had my tentacles tangled up a few times. Ask your parents to help you move furniture out of the way, move away from windows or tables with dishes on them, and pick up any books or toys on the floor.
- ##### 3 Tell someone at home you are venturing into VR

Whenever I go on a virtual adventure, I make sure my crew knows exactly where I'm going. Whenever you want to go into virtual reality, tell your parents, who are YOUR crewmates. The best part is, our parents can help select and prepare us for all kinds of adventures in VR. Once we get back, share what happened so they can help make it even better next time!
- ##### 4 Use Safety Controls

As a cuttlefish, I take pride in having fun swimming solo in single-player virtual worlds because there are SO MANY to choose from. I know sometimes we will join our friends in multiplayer and social VR adventures. Every app or game has different safety controls that allow us to mute, kick, and ignore people who might bother us. Let's ask our parents to help enable safety controls so we can stay focused on our exploratory missions!
- ##### 5 Keep your REAL identity a secret to avoid VR Stranger Danger

One of the most important rules of VR adventures is that we don't tell people in virtual worlds who we are or where we live in real life. Just like the cuttlefish, when we're in virtual reality, we have the superpower of being able to blend in and be whatever we can imagine! Let's not tell strangers online anything about our real lives, or they might see through your camouflage and figure out our real identities. And just like us, other people are in disguises, too, and we never know who they really are behind that camouflaged avatar. Play it safe, avoid stranger danger in VR and you'll have a lot more fun!

LEONORA CAMUSSO

I'm Leonora Camusso, and I am an illustrator based in Italy.

I was born and raised in the mountains between Italy and France. When I was little, I spent my days wandering through meadows and woods with a few pencils and a sketchbook in my hand. It was then that I became deeply passionate about the natural world and drawing. Growing up, I studied illustration and animation at IED in Turin for four years. Later I explored other creative fields and worked in graphic design as well as illustration.

Now I live at the foot of the mountains, focusing on my career as an illustrator.

I work mainly for children's books, but I also create characters, infographics, and editorial illustrations for national and international clients.

I can't stop drawing and creating even for a minute. I'm always excited to work on new projects that allow her to use different skills, from my beloved watercolour to digital illustration and paper toys design.

My biggest passion is still animals and nature: that's why I try to learn every curiosity about it. I also love to discover and pass on folk tales and legends, so I founded a project to collect the stories of Alpine folklore.

If you can't find me in my studio, it's because I'm wandering through meadows and woods with my sketchbook in hand.

Essential things never change!

List of clients I enjoyed working with:

Milan Presse, Erickson, Mondadori, Giunti Scuola, Editrice La Scuola, Sassi Junior, SEI Editrice, Il Capitello, Rusconi-Theoria, Circonflexe-Rue des enfants.
